Agriculture Education Major

Teacher Certification

The information in this document is accurate as of September 2015. Certification and testing requirements in the various states are subject to change. Candidates should verify this information by visiting the Department of Education in each state.
Agriculture Education Majors

UD testing requirements
To receive the University's recommendation for certification, Agriculture Education majors are required to pass (DE passing score – 147) the Praxis II, Agriculture 5701.

At the time of registration, you must designate where you want your test scores sent. You get 4 free copies. You must designate the University of Delaware (5811) as one of your score recipients. In addition to UD, you should designate the Delaware Department of Education and other state departments of education, which require these tests and in which you are interested in seeking certification. While UD candidates are required to pass the tests required by the state of Delaware to receive the University's recommendation for certification, additional tests may be required in states other than Delaware.

Go to www.ets.org/praxis to register for these tests.

Score reports are available via your online account. You will receive an email when your score report has been posted. Scores will be accessible via your account for one year from the posting date. We recommend you save a copy of your report for your files.

Frequently Asked Questions

▲ Upon graduation will I be eligible to teach in states other than DE?

Yes, The University of Delaware’s Agriculture Education programs has achieved “state approved program” status by the State of Delaware. The National Association of State Directors of Teacher Education and Certification (NASDTEC) Interstate Reciprocity Agreement facilitates the movement of educators among the states and other jurisdictions that are members of NASDTEC and have signed the Agreement. Although there may be conditions applicable to individual jurisdictions, the Agreement makes it possible for an educator who completed an approved program and/or who holds a certificate or license in one jurisdiction to earn a certificate or license in another state or jurisdiction. It is not necessarily "full" reciprocity. The educator may have to complete additional requirements, such as additional testing and GPA requirements, before receiving a certificate in the new state. Additional information concerning the NASDTEC interstate agreement can be found at http://www.nasdtec.net/?page=Interstate.

▲ How do I become certified to teach?

Upon completion of one of the University of Delaware's “state approved” teacher education programs, the University will recommend you for teacher certification. This recommendation, Institutional Recommendation, will be noted on your official transcript upon program completion.

You need to apply for teacher certification through the individual states' departments of education. A directory of all of the states’ departments of education is located on UD's teacher education web site at http://www.teachered.udel.edu/certification/. Although you will not be able to complete the application process until you have completed your program of study, you should learn about the application process early in your senior year. Information about the certification process can be obtained online by clicking on the name of the state.

▲ Do I need to take tests to become a certified teacher?

Yes! Most states require initial applicants for teacher certification to pass required tests. However, the tests required and the passing scores vary from state to state. Some states require tests that have been developed specifically within that state, e.g., New York. However, many states require tests that are part of the Praxis Series developed and administered by the Educational Testing Service (ETS). To find out what tests are required, go to the Department of Education in each state.

▲ Where can I go for help?
